When Surveys Become Propaganda

by Linda Harvey

It's time to put a stop to all surveys in schools. They serve no valid educational purpose, yet the stories are piling up about invasive, explicit, "woke" survey instruments being inflicted on K through 12 public school students. Surveys are, in fact, tools of manipulation for some purpose other than academic achievement. From Kansas to Virginia, from North Carolina to Louisiana, parents are fed up with inappropriate quizzing of children about their attitudes, gender identities, sex practices and home lives.
