Huge Threat to Parental Rights in Schools: Title IX Changes

What's the greatest threat to parental rights in the coming school year? It may be the Title IX changes proposed by the ever-devicious Democrats. NOTE-- There's still time to tell the Biden administration what you think. Click link below for action steps.

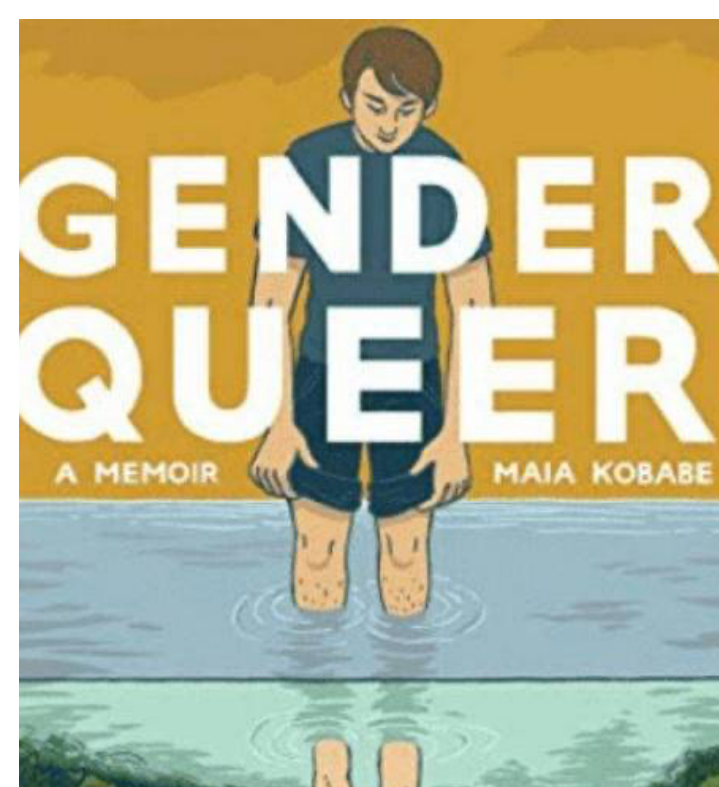

Biden is attempting by executive order to radically alter the definition of the word "sex." By a lawless distortion of presidential authority, Biden wants the meaning of "sex" in Title IX to cover "sexual orientation," "gender identity," and "pregnancy or related conditions."

The US Department of Education is taking public comments on this until September 12. [PHOTO- this immoral, unscientific graphic is used to convince smaller children that gender is "fluid."]

You Can Opt Children Out of Inappropriate Lessons!

From Protect Ohio Children — Before sending your children back to school, be sure to opt-out of all "Inappropriate Material/Racially Divisive Concepts, and Social Emotional Learning (SEL)" for the 2022-23 school year. One recommended form starts out as follows: "I DO NOT CONSENT to my child's participation in any instruction or discussion which is derived of racially divisive concepts..." Another opts children out of inappropriate lessons about human sexuality. Use these forms and email them to your school principal. Always remember to get everything in writing from your school.
